

Craig Ranch Awarded Community of the Year
McKinney Development Also Receives Two More Awards from the Homebuilders
Association of Greater Dallas 2009 ARC Awards Program

In September of 2009, Craig Ranch received the prestigious Community of the Year award from The Homebuilders Association of Greater Dallas' 2009 ARC Awards Program.

“This is quite an honor,” said David Craig, president and CEO of Craig International. “Craig Ranch offers a unique, urban opportunity with amenities that are hard to find anywhere else. To be named Community of the Year shows that the industry and consumers want what we have to offer: urban walkability with convenience, small-town values and a healthy lifestyle.”

Located at one of Collin County’s primary crossroads and at the center of the fastest-growing area of North Texas, Craig Ranch is between Custer and Stacy Roads north of Highway 121 at the convergence of Plano, Allen, Frisco and McKinney and across the highway from the planned Collin County Performing Arts Center.

The community was also awarded Best Printed Marketing Brochure for its Grand Lodge homes product and Craig Ranch Residential Marketing Director Colleen Aldstadt received the “Weathering the Storm” award for her efforts during HBA’s “The Big Home Tour.”

Earlier this year, Craig Ranch received the National Silver award from the International Builder’s Show for its planned Information Center and two McSams Awards for Best Builder Brochure for the Residences at Grand Lodge and Best Sales Office.

The ARC awards were created to recognize excellence in custom building and remodeling in approximately 60 categories—everything from Best CAPS Remodel to Best Green Built Home to Outstanding Service by a Building Services Associate. The ARC Awards Banquet was held Saturday, August 22, 2009 at The Westin Galleria.
